3. The offline agent channel remains dominant in client acquisition, contributing to 55.4% and 55.7% of revenue, respectively.

4. Age Group Analysis

2. Among all policy plans, the 31-40 age group emerged as the most consistent customer base.

Highlights

Targeting the 18-24 Age Group: With fewer customers and revenue than other demographics, focusing efforts on this age group presents an opportunity for product development and tailored marketing strategies.

Capitalizing on the Senior Market: The significant customer base and revenue generated by the 65+ age group highlight the company's strength in serving seniors, suggesting potential for further growth through tailored offerings.

Exploring Strategic Partnerships: Leverage partnerships with healthcare providers, financial institutions, or other relevant businesses to expand reach and offer exclusive discounts to customers across different age groups.

Enhancing Online Presence: Opportunities for growth exist in the online domain, with online sales modes contributing a smaller share of both customer acquisition and revenue.

Agent Training and Support: Invest in continuous training and support for agents to bolster their skills, product knowledge and customer service capabilities, thereby strengthening the performance of the offline-agent sales mode.
